Cemetery clean-up: May 11th:

I would like to express all my gratitude to the Volunteers who last week helped us to take care of St. Paul's Oratory grounds.

There is a lot to do, and despite all the good will and hard work, abbé Kevin and myself have difficulty to keep up with everything. So, please consider joining us again on Saturday 11th, at St. Paul's Cemetery, for the spring clean-up, before Memorial Day. We will start at 10am (earlier is not possible for us since the Mass is at 9am).

The Oratory possesses some gardening tools, but not a lot. If you have some, feel free to bring them: it will be more than useful. Mainly weedwhacker and leaf blowers...

Cemetery Clean-up:

Saturday 11th:
starting at 10am.

Memorial Day:

Monday 27th:

High Requiem Mass
at 10am

souls of our fallen soldiers.

A Monstrance for Our Lord

Dear faithful, thank you so much for your generosity, we already fundraise more than 3 000 dollars, and some faithful told me that they will participate to this common effort in a near future. Thank you so much! It is important to put a good order among our priorities. Obviously, Our Lord should receive the first place... but sometimes we find some fake excuses to keep this first place for someone or something else. Not here! Not today!

Thanks to your generous participation, I have been able to buy a beautiful antique sterling silver French Monstrance. Hopefully it will arrive soon, (before Corpus Christi? I hope so.) I will display it in the church hall after the Sunday Mass, once it will be arrived. So, you will be able to admire what you have been able to offer to Him.

Canon Dumain.

PS: It is not the monstrance of my dream, but in order to afford the one of my dreams, we will have to work on the conversion of one or two billionaires (or to wait that one or two of our faithful became billionaire.)

Donations for a better Monstrance: $ 3 095.00

Tarcisius's Teaching. Which Missal? -3

Since Canon Dumain silenced me last week, let's return to our conversation...

You can choose between a pre-1955 Missal, (with the complete Holy Week, but not some other Masses), or a 1962 Missal with all the Masses but not the complete Holy Week. (Last week and this week are a perfect example: in a pre-1955, May 1st was the feast of St. Philip & James. They were moved to May 11th by Pope Pius XII when he places St. Joseph on May 1st, without octave. Beforehand, his feast was on Wednesday during the 3rd week of Easter, with octave... (Why Wednesday during the 3rd week? ... because St. Pius X moved it from the 3rd Sunday after Easter, where it was since 1870.)

Another example: May 6th: feast of the martyrdom (failed) of St. John, at the Latin Gate. It was celebrated on May 6th since the VI century, until 1960, when it was placed amidst the Missa Pro Aloquibus Locis... So not every Missals have it...

Why all this change? Good question...

- Some says: it is because the Church likes to make it difficult when it could be simple... (it is not totally wrong...)
- Some, says: the Vatican has some money invested in Print Shop... (fake news: it will have been smart... but too smart for us.)
- Some says (and it is the real reason) that it is because there were always some modifications in the Church Calendar, based mainly on the development of the dogma, and sometimes on some particular devotions of Popes...
