INSTITUTE OF CHRIST THE KING SOVEREIGN PRIEST

The Light of the World

In His teaching, Jesus warns us: We must be vigilant because whereas we fight and progress in the spiritual life, the enemy of good is lying in wait. Even after this enemy leaves a soul, later finding that soul empty and open to his snares, he is ready to return more powerful than before "with seven other spirits more wicked than himself." Therefore, let us always be vigilant!

Jesus challenges us to be faithful to Him; He is the stronger one who binds the strong one, that is, the devil. Jesus is in the process of defeating the devil by His passion, death and resurrection. We must be very careful not to lose the grace of God. If we do, our last state could be worse than our first.

The model in this regard is Jesus' holy mother who is praised in the last verse of the Gospel when Jesus says, "Rather, blessed are they who hear the word of God and keep it." Of course, the Virgin Mary is blessed because she gave birth to the Redeemer. She is still more blessed through her perfect union with Him in the observance of His word. This blessing is also offered to every soul of good will and continues to be the greatest guarantee of victory over evil, for one united to God becomes strong with His strength.

Modern society is rapidly becoming more secular, atheistic and immoral. Our world would like to exist as if God does not exist.

As Catholics, we oppose this omnipresent denial of God by being "children of light" whom St. Paul describes as those who walk in truth and goodness.

Canon Antoine Boucheron

Feast of St. Joseph, March 20 (TRANSFERRED)

The model of domestic virtues and humble daily toil, the guardian of chaste souls, the protector of Christians homes, and patron of the Oratory, St. Joseph, foster-father of the Child Jesus, faithfully and humbly carried out the difficult and glorious mission entrusted to him.
St. Joseph, Pray for us.

Evening High Mass, 6:00 p.m.

The Feast of the Annunciation

March 25, Saturday Morning High Mass, 10:00 a.m.

On the Feast of the Annunciation, a day to be spent in joy, we celebrate her in whom the Word was made flesh, in whom the son of God united Himself forever to our humanity in order to enable us to share in His Divinity. Through the mystery of the Incarnation, Mary obtained her most wondrous title of the Mother of God. Through it she became the Mother of Christians, for through fiat as Mother of the Word Incarnate she was associated with the entire redemptive work of her Son.

In contrast with the curse provoked by Eve, Mary is declared to be "blessed among women," -- the Archangel Gabriel informs her of the tremendous plans of God for her. Through her God will give the promised Redeemer to the world. With the assurance that the miraculous birth will not impair her virginity Mary accepts, and the mystery of the union between God and man is accomplished in her by the power of the Holy Spirit. Mary, a daughter of Eve shares not Eve's sin. Eve was foolish, Mary wise; Eve was proud, Mary humble; Eve gave of the tree of death, Mary gives of the Tree of Life.

St. Benedict of Nursia, Abbot, March 21

PATRON OF THE INSTITUTE OF CHRIST THE KING

Evening High Mass, 6:00 p.m.

At all the major turning points of history God raised up great saints to ensure the fulfillment of the Church's divine mission for the souls of men. St. Benedict is a classic example of this.

St. Benedict was well-known for living in a cave as a hermit. During this period he made a close study of the Scriptures, and for the rest of his life, in complete self-dedication, gave all that God asked. "The finger of God had only to point, and he followed whatever the cost." The cave was a hidden retreat upon a barren mountainside, at first its whereabouts known only to a single friend who brought him food in secret, lowering it by rope over the mountain edge. After three years his popularity for spiritual guidance became widely known and he was chosen by the monks of a neighboring monastery to be their abbot.

Subject to the jealous persecution of a local priest, in 527 he traveled to Monte Cassino, 85 miles southeast of Rome, on the summit of which stood an altar to Apollo; there he tore down the pagan shrine and established the greatest and most famous of all monasteries, which became the home of the Benedictine Order. When he died in 543 there were 14 Benedictine communities, and by the 14th century there were over 30,000.

At Monte Cassino he wrote his great Rule which combined the Roman genius and the monastic wisdom of the Christian East. He imbued the monastic life with a new leaven that contributed to the formation of Christendom in the Middle Ages. A monk was to be a soldier of God, "a member of a spiritual garrison holding duty for Christ in a hostile world," and to be always on duty. It was a great and happy brotherhood with a strong family unity, so that wherever its members went they felt a common bond, and drew their strength from their home at Cassino, built upon the rock. He believed in the moral value of work; for idleness, he said, is hostile to the soul, and manual labor is part of the true pattern and glory of life. Thus work and study were joyfully intermingled, and each of his monasteries became a colony of God, a mission station with a civilizing influence for the dark night of Northern Europe.

From the Rule of St. Benedict: "Help those who are in trouble;" "Console the afflicted;" "Speak the truth from your heart as from your mouth;" "Attribute the good that you find in yourself to God, and not to yourself;" "Listen willingly to the Holy Scriptures;" "Honor those who are old;" "Love those who are younger;" "Pray for your enemies in the love of Christ;" "Make peace, before the setting of the sun, with those from whom you have been separated by discord;" "And never despair of the mercy of God."
